

ABSTRACT

A printing cartridge includes a housing. An actuating formation is positioned on the housing and is capable of actuating a number of capacitive sensors in an array of such sensors. The actuating formation is configured to represent data relating to a characteristic of the printing cartridge so that the capacitive sensors, when actuated, together generate a signal carrying such data.